The ever-popular destination wedding, affectionately called the "weddingmoon", combines both the wedding, reception and honeymoon together in one location. With all the details and challenges in planning a "perfect" wedding and the pricetag that come with it, more couples are opting to reduce the hassle and focus on something truly unique. The destination wedding is generally held at a desirable location that allows the wedding guests to vacation and spend more quality time with the wedding couple.

The destination wedding is typically under 40 people and involves a few days of activities for all the guests. The destination wedding is the central location that the bride and groom chooses as their "headquarters". Activities are then planned for their guests from this location. These destination weddings can be an exotic destination or the hometown in which you grew up.

When planning a destination wedding be sure to have an itinerary for your guest, so they will have an idea about what to expect.
